

August, 2010

It is transition time yet again as Jeff works towards the end of the JetHawks baseball season and towards the start of the Montana State football season. There have been many memorable moments this summer, including getting to call his first no-hitter, the first in Lancaster franchise history. He also called two cycles and a walk-off grand slam this summer.

Jeff has made many appearances lately in many media outlets. A short web documentary on the grind of Minor League baseball called "The Farm" features Jeff in a main role. He has also been interviewed and quoted in the Los Angeles Times and the Daily News in his role as the Media Relations Director for the JetHawks.

September will see the start of football season. The home opener is September 4 with an exciting trip to Washington State September 11. Basketball season includes a multi-day tournament to Hawaii and a trip back to Southern California in December for a battle against UCLA.